THE GREENBRIER WHITE.

GREENBRIER WHITE. SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA., June 25.—This beautiful old resort opened yesterday with the prospect of one of the most successful seasons it has known since the halcyon days preceding the Civil war. In fact, there is a fascination about the famous "Old White" which seems rather to increase than diminish with the passing years, due to its social charm, embodying that gay, brilliant life and generous hospitality typical of the South in ante-bellum days, and which her alone remains intact. Added to its great natural beauties for the physical well being as well as for the enjoyment of the human kind, all of which are now cultivated to the highest extent. For Mr. George A. Miller, Jr., the present manager, and already widely known for his successful management of the Grafton, in Washington, is a progressive man and believes in modern art and science as assistants to nature, consequently the place was never in better sanitary condition or lovelier in appearance than now. The historic main building, the quaint architectural features of which are among its greatest charms, has been freshened rather than inappropriately rejuvenated in an attractive coat of cool silvery gray paint. To the wide, roomy verandas with their white columns wreathed in vines, cosy nooks have been added, reaching out under the leafy screen of ever-hanging boughs, with the square spaces of award between filled in with beds of blossoming plants. The cottages have been thoroughly renovated, while the newly kept lawns, shadowed by trees of half a century or more of growth, the world famous White Sulphur Springs under its picturesque colonnade, the further grounds with their artistic and picturesque surroundings, all combining to form an ideal picture of healthful loveliness fittingly framed by the great Appalachian mountains, amid whose highest peaks it nestles. When to its other advantages are added the more material ones of an immense garden for furnishing the table constantly with fresh vegetables; its own dairy and herd of fine Jerseys and other essentials for an abundant pure food supply, the attractions of the White Sulphur are found to be equally as complete as they are unique. Already guests are arriving in large numbers by every train, and in a few days the hotel and cottages will be well filled, the delightfully cool weather so conducive to out-of-door life and the pleasant home-like feeling which prevails, rendering the early season here as attractive in its way as the gaiety of the later one.

As usual many of the earliest visitors are from the far South, though many are booked to arrive shortly from New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Louisville, Baltimore and Richmond. Among the latter are Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Hamilton, Mrs. O. B. Osterloh and daughter, Mrs. F. R. Pemberton and family, Mrs. F. D. Williams and family, Mr. John P. Branch and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. L. Hutcheson.

Judge J. F. Crocker, of Portsmouth, Va., who has been a prominent guest at the White for several summers, will return for the present season.

Judge and Mrs. Roger A. Pryor, of New York, will also return for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Elliott and family, of Savannah, Ga., are settled in the Colonnade for the present season.

Rev. P. P. Phillips, rector of St. Paul's Church, Alexandria, Va., with Mrs. Phillips and their little daughter, are occupying a cottage in Georgia row.

Mr. Girvan Thomas, of Louisville, Ky., who was such an attractive beau and generous host last season, returned on Thursday.

Other recent arrivals are Mrs. A. D. Jett, T. C. Gaskins, New York; Mrs. W. H. Hoover and son, Charlotte, N. C.; J. B. Ogden, Thurman, W. Va.; Miss Sarah Harrison Powell, Edward A. Tyler, Baltimore; F. Fanning, Dallas, Texas; D. A. O'Brien, E. A. Bradus, Washington; Joseph J. McGee, F. A. Whalen, Woonsocket, R. I.

HATCHER IN SOUTHWEST

Discovers a Fine Town in a Valley Overlapped by Mountains.

LOCATED IN COALDOM

Norton a Young Giant, With the Air of Courageous Enterprise. Fire Blessing in Disguise.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
 NORTON, VA., June 25.—Norton is one of our new mountain towns, and to the traveler has quite a budget of attraction. It is strung along for a mile or two in a marvelous fine valley in the southwestern portion of Wise county. This valley, while walled in on every side by overtopping mountains, is broad, and, in addition to much comparatively level ground, rises into gentle elevations, which offer commanding sites for homes. It claims a population of three thousand, and wears the air of courageous enterprise.

Of course, the east Virginian, who is ubiquitous, is here and shouting for the new town, but a five-minute talk with him will rekindle his passion for the land beyond the mountains. He looks, however, upon the town as a large measure of a part of their baggage a large measure of Tennessee thrift. Norton is located on the terminal of the railroad between Norfolk and Western, and the Louisville and Nashville—and is in easy connection with the East and the West. It also has connection with Bristol, and it is said that other lines are already projected that will terminate here.

NOBLE HILLS.
 The surrounding mountains of Norton are simply mammoth piles of coal, and to the north of the town, for seventy-five miles, it is said to be an almost solid mass of coal. Within a radius of ten miles of the town there are eighteen coal mines in active operation, the chief of which are the Norton Coal Company, the Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Company, the Colonial Coal and Coke Company, and the Stone Gap Coal Company. The Norton Coal Company, the chief of the public if the figures were given as to the number of operatives employed in these mines, who, with their families, constitute an altogether new type of population. It is a matter of history that until a few years ago Wise county was a penitentiary upon the bounty of Virginia. She did not pay sufficient taxes to defray her running expenses. A single fact will indicate the wondrous change which has come. The assessed value of properties in this county is $5,000,000, and the population has probably grown two hundred per cent. within the last twenty years.

LAWLESSNESS.
 It need not be said that with this bewildering influx of population have come many enterprising and public spirited people, who greatly enrich the citizenship of the county, but the bulk of the new element, except in the single point of labor, is not of the most congenial or desirable sort. In the wake of this lawless invasion came the adventurer and trickster, and for a time the lovers of law and order were dumb with dread. Disorders abounded, the jail was thronged and even dangerous law to suppress disorder, and in not a few cases the gallows alone furnished relief in desperate cases. Already the citizens gladly testify that the situation in this respect shows marked improvement of crime. The fearless maintenance of law and the speedy punishment of crime have already begun to bear the peaceable fruits of civil righteousness. It is a significant fact that the county has absolutely shut out the saloons, not so much at the behest of the temperance agitator as at the imperative demand of business intelligence. We talk of the whirl and storm of business in the crowded marts of trade, but in this section the whiz and music of business can be heard on almost every train, at every depot, and in every village.

THE FIRE.
 Nothing fattens on travel so rapidly as a sensational rumor. Outsiders have gotten an exaggerated view of the fire which occurred in Norton last week. It was a serious enough incident, but it was not the far sweeping calamity which the public was led at first to believe. The fire was restricted to a single square, did not consume all the buildings on that square, and all the business and residences were of wood except two. The square was in reality the birthplace of the town, and while many of the buildings were highly respectable, they were for the most part inadequate and out of keeping with the general improvements of the town. The burnt square has its front on the main street of the town, and before the fire occurred it had been determined that no other frame buildings should be allowed on this street. By last Saturday night every note of lament had ceased, and the chief thought of the sufferers seemed to be to secure architects and make contracts for far more extensive buildings, which they would build more substantially than those which had been destroyed. The sufferers have handed in detailed statements of their losses, and the amounts foot up $104,000, a much smaller amount than that which has been put out at first. The amount of insurance involved will be about $40,000.

BUSINESS ENTERPRISE.
 Norton has five or six extensive wholesale establishments, one of the most prominent of which is the Norton Wholesale Grocery, of which Mr. J. Frank Surface is the very efficient and successful manager. It is said that the wholesale trade of the town is quickly active. This portion of the State, and extends largely into Kentucky and Tennessee. The town also has two strong banks, the Citizens Bank, of which Mr. George Jenkins is cashier, and the First National, of which Mr. C. C. Hyatt is cashier. Without being invidious, it is worth while to say that a town claiming among its citizens such public spirited and loyal men as Mr. M. L. Stirling, A. M. Wilson, J. L. Lyon, former Mayor of H. O. W. N. Surface and H. H. Caspar, with scores of others equally worthy, need not feel apprehensive as to its future.

THE RAILROAD.
 Among other attractive features of Norton, stand its churches, of which there are four. The Methodists are the strongest denomination, and have a very creditable house of worship, which is under construction and is to receive important additions and improvements. It has for its pastor Rev. R. P. Shuler. The Presbyterians also have a house, which has recently been beautified and refurbished. They have for their pastor Rev. K. P. Simmons. The Primitive Baptists also have an organization, and a small house of worship. The Baptists have just finished a really beautiful and convenient house of worship. For its construction, much credit is due to the

..A CARD..

Rev. M. A. Wilson, a veteran missionary of the Baptist State Mission Board, Mr. Wilson has been a missionary all of his public life, and has gained the well merited distinction of church-builder, this being the seventeenth house which has been built in Southwest Virginia under his self-denying leadership. It is a matter of widespread regret that Mr. Wilson was taken seriously ill last week and grave fears are felt as to the result of his sickness.

CHURCH DEDICATION.
 The dedication of the new Baptist Church occurred Sunday, June 19th, and served as an interesting, and even exciting, topic in the talk of the town. Large congregations attended the service, and the church, which was dedicated on the house, and that it was quite a feat before the service of dedication was held. The liberality of the people was something out of the ordinary, and every dollar of the indebtedness was wiped out. It was natural that this fact greatly enhanced the satisfaction, with which the little church entered into the dedicatory services of the day.

Mr. Wilson having recently resigned the chair of the church, there is a demand for a new pastor, and the one upon whom the choice shall fall, will have a full field of resource and opportunity. Politically, West country is not in full fellowship with the ruling forces of Virginia. The Democrat in Wise is happy in the fact that he belongs to the reigning political party of Virginia, but when he comes to covet a local office he feels that there are entirely too many of the other sort. This fact, if it abates his interest in local situations, only intensifies his pride in the Democratic supremacy in the State. To a brother from over the hills the Southwestern Virginia Democrat talks politics on express time. He wants to know how the winds are blowing. They have a neighbor who has gubernatorial aspirations, and they are not by any means ashamed of him. They think that he will measure up with any who may come forth to contend with him, or the price. At the same time many kindly things were said of Willard, Ellison, Swanson and Mann. They sit upon their mountains and watch the giants as they are stripping for the arena.

Wood's Seeds.

Crimson Clover

Sown at the last working of the Corn or Cotton Crop, can be plowed under the following April or May in time to plant corn or other crops the same season. Crimson Clover prevents winter leaching of the soil, is equal in fertilizing value to a good application of stable manure and will wonderfully increase the yield and quality of corn or other crops which follow it. It also makes splendid winter and spring grazing, fine early green feed, or a good hay crop. Even if the crop is cut off, the action of the roots and stubble improve the land to a marked degree.
